

Focused on breeding: new wheat varieties from Strube

The seed breeding company Strube can look forward to new registrations of various wheat varieties throughout Europe and can welcome around 10 new varieties to its product portfolio.

As in 2019, plant breeder Strube can look forward to the approval of new wheat varieties in 2020. Among others, there are four new additions for Lithuania and two in Poland and Estonia.

For the German market, Strube can welcome the two winter wheat varieties su mangold and wasmond as well as the flexible wheat su alvius. The new varieties impress with vitality and stable yields.

Click on the map to enlarge it.